

SCHOOLS TOTAL 442 IN FIRST DAYS OF RESUMED CLASSES

High School Exceeds Total of Last Year at This Time

"Readin' and writin' and 'rithmetic" and the more specialized courses of study offered in our modern schools are being taught to 442 pupils at Antioch High School and Antioch Grade School after a three months vacation for teachers and pupils.

Enrollment at Antioch High School has added 23 pupils to the 234 who registered Tuesday, Aug. 28, according to Principal L. O. Bright. A further increase in this figure is expected in the next few months and continuing throughout the year. The figure is slightly larger than the enrollment of last year at the same time when the total was 253 on the Thursday after the opening of school.

Large Primary Class

In the grades, 185 have enrolled this week, according to Ralph E. Clabaugh, principal. This number is slightly under last year's total, but it is anticipated that last year's figure will be equalled this year. A larger primary class than was expected is enrolled this year, according to Mr. Clabaugh. Twenty-four beginners entered school this week.

Changes in the schedule at the high school included dropping physics from the program because of an insufficient enrollment for this subject. Football will be substituted this year by intra-mural sports which will include soccer, speedball and volleyball. Mr. Bright stated today that he is unable at present to announce whether there will be interscholastic contests in these sports, but that an effort is being made to arrange soccer games with other schools.

Party for Freshmen

The annual junior party for freshmen will be given tomorrow (Friday) afternoon after school with the freshmen undergoing an initiation. Other classes are spectators but not participants at this ceremony. Mrs. Roger Dardenne and C. L. Kuttel are sponsors of the Junior Class this year and Miss Alice Smith and Thomas Cox are sponsors of the Freshmen.

All classes are full, according to Mr. Bright, and the study hall is particularly over-crowded. All rooms are in use, he states.

Powles Will Add Grocery Section

Meat Market Owner to Use Former Fruit Store Building

A grocery and fruit market will be opened in the building formerly occupied by Tackles' Lake Street Fruit and Vegetable Market, by Frank Powles during the next two weeks, to be operated in connection with the Powles Meat Market next door.

The space which will be occupied by this addition to the market is being remodeled this week, and a door has been cut between the two stores. A specialty line of groceries has been carried by Mr. Powles in his meat market.

The Powles Meat Market has been a business institution in Antioch for a number of years. Charles Powles, father of the present proprietor, owning and operating it until a year ago when his son bought the business. The younger Mr. Powles had worked in the market for ten years previous to buying it from his father.

While the formal opening of the grocery section will not be held until sometime within the next two weeks, Mr. Powles plans to be open for business by Saturday.

Antioch's Chances for Receiving Recovery Act Funds for Public Works Appear Slim

Antioch's chances of receiving a share of the National Recovery Act funds for public works in Illinois, appear slim following the announcement last week-end of the improvements in Lake County for which money has been granted by the government out of the first $15,000,000 allowed this state. Illinois still has $2,500,000 coming to complete its allotment.

Three landscaping jobs for highways from Lake Bluff to the Wisconsin line, from Cook county line to Highland Park, and Highland Park to Lake Bluff; two subways under the railway tracks in Lake Forest; two viaducts under tracks at Roundout, and paving of four blocks in Waukegan, comprise the list of projects in Lake county which will benefit from the act. None of these were among the improvements for which money was requested by the board of supervisors.

Asked this morning to state his opinion of Antioch's chance of receiving government funds for construction of a new water tower and extension of the sewers on Harden street, Village President George B. Bartlett declined to make any statement, but again pointed out that there "is nothing lost by trying."

The proposed projects would cost a total of slightly over $12,000, of which 30 per cent would come as an outright gift from the government. If the board of trustees' application for aid were accepted.

Mr. Bartlett also pointed out that in case the allotment is granted, carrying out the project will involve a vast amount of red tape. "The money is not allowed except in those cases where the village can show that it would otherwise be impossible for the village to carry out the public work. We must plead poverty," Mr. Bartlett explained.

This latter requirement is believed to be somewhat endangered by the fact that the municipal water department has a balance of more than $5,000 now on hand for the construction of the water tower.

Indian Point Cottage Burns in Fire Early Saturday; Lose, $700

A cottage belonging to Mrs. Ruth Anderson on Indian Point burned to the ground early Saturday morning causing a loss estimated by one of the firemen, Sam Tarbell, at $700. Firemen called to fight the blaze were unable to save the cottage already in flames, but were successful in keeping the fire from spreading.

Although the cause of the fire is not known, Mrs. Anderson stated that several persons had been in the cottage until about an hour and a half before the blaze was noticed. She did not reveal the names of the parties nor state whether they were friends or renters.

Two other cottages both around 100 feet from the cottage which burned, are owned by her at this location. Despite their proximity, the other cottages were saved from any damage. According to Mrs. Anderson, the loss was covered by insurance.

Several students from Antioch will leave next week for their schools to take part in the freshman activities.

LEGIONNAIRES JOIN FORCES WITH PARTY CLUB IN N.R.A. DRIVE

Will Complete Canvass This Week, Mastne Says

Legionnaires have joined their forces with those of the local Democrats Club in making a drive for N. R. A. membership among consumers. It was stated this week by Frank Mastne, chairman of the campaign. Dr. L. John Zimmerman and Walter Hills have been added to the committee of four under Mr. Mastne, of which the other two members are Howard Mastne and George Phillips. The house to house canvass will be completed before the end of this week, Mr. Mastne states, expressing satisfaction with the progress which has been made with the sign-up. A campaign among employers is also being conducted by the committee.

Neither Mr. Mastne nor members of his committee were able to give any definite figures as to the number who have already signed, but Mr. Mastne estimated that several hundred membership buttons and stickers have been given out. Householders have been responsive to the drive, according to the canvassers.

Merchants in support of the code have sponsored an "honor roll" of backers appearing in this week's issue of the News to advertise the value of the N. R. A. and indicate their own active support of the principles involved in the industrial code.

Confidence in the results which will come of the recovery act has been expressed by a number of business men in this community. Dr. L. John Zimmerman stated yesterday that he believes whole hearted support of the code will benefit everyone, although for the time, it may work a hardship with some employers.

Forty-five Antioch merchants have signed the compliance certificates and returned them to the postoffice since the drive began several weeks ago. Additional employees have been hired by some business houses in town thus carrying out the essential purpose of the code.

Buttons and stickers are issued to householders who place their signature on the consumer's certificates. All homes are requested to display the eagle consumer sticker in the window.

The boys, who spent four days at the fair camp, were in direct charge of Lloyd Atwell who assisted C. L. Kuttel, instructor of Vocational Agriculture at Antioch.

License Granted Increases Revenue On Beer to $1,100

The new tavern is located in the building formerly occupied by the Wallace Clothing store. Mr. Dibble formerly conducted a soft drink parlor several buildings north on Main St. The license was granted for the remainder of the year, 1933-34.

Village Marshal Simon Simonsen was instructed at the meeting to shut off water, starting Wednesday, where the consumer had not paid his bill. This action on past due water accounts was decided on by the board recently to stop the mounting total of water delinquents.

LABOR DAY REPORTS CONFLICT; MERCHANTS ENJOY GOOD BUSINESS

Declared Better than 4th But Not by Resort Operators

Despite ideal weather, Labor Day left conflicting reports as to the boost the holiday gave local business. Resort operators declaring that the holiday brought no additional patronage and merchants and business men enthusiastically describing it as a better day than Fourth of July.

Merchants in most cases were well satisfied with the business enjoyed over the holiday, stating that business was better than on Fourth of July, usually considered the peak of the summer trade. Food stores and meat markets found the holiday business particularly good. Restaurants also enjoyed a good trade.

Resort operators blamed the air races, fair, and double header baseball game as attractions holding Chicago people in the city. "With every attraction offered in Chicago to keep people there, what could we expect?" was the general trend of their discussions.

Cottagers Entertain

Crowds which considerably stimulated trade in the business section of Antioch were believed to consist largely of cottage owners and their guests. At most of the cottages from three to eight cars were parked in the yards over the week-end and Monday.

Labor Day marked the official close of the poorest resort season which has visited this section since it became known as a playground for metropolitan vacationists. Despite ideal weather conditions, resort operators have been unable to attract the crowds to this section which have visited the chain of Lakes in other years. The early part of the summer saw almost no visitors at the lakes, but starting with Fourth of July, business became somewhat better. Memorial Day proved a sad disappointment to those who had foreseen a prosperous season, because of the crowds being attracted to the Fair.

Chicagoans Stay Home

While visitors of A Century of Progress from other states have in some cases come to Antioch for week-ends or a day of sightseeing, these few stragglers did not begin to make up for the many Chicago vacationists who were evidently staying home to entertain relatives and friends and to see the Fair.

Although resort operators in this section have complained that business throughout the summer has been worse than last year, in some sections of the county, especially in the Grass Lake and Fox Lake sections, where a wide advertising campaign was conducted, operators have pronounced this the best year since 1929.

While Labor Day is considered the close of the vacation period, the season often extends into late September and even until the opening of the hunting season. The heat of the past few days, it is believed, will prolong the vacation period this year, keeping many families at the lake. The late opening of Chicago public schools, which has been set at Sept. 15, also may keep many families here until later in the year.

Dooper of Loon Lake Jailed on Charge of Assault Made on Wife

A SOLUTION?

Is the National Recovery Act code a complete solution to the business depression? Perhaps not, but it offers hope of partial solution if it wins whole hearted support, national industrial leaders agree. A year ago or two years ago, when we were already in the midst of this period which has surpassed all others for trade apathy, this drastic measure would have won "boos" from all but the radicals. But we're a nation which is tired of waiting for the world to right itself.

The philosophy that things will come out all right of themselves, was given a trial in 1930, '31 and '32. We have lost faith in this Pollyanna idea. We want action if it means our own action, and we're willing to allow our established modes of thinking to undergo great changes, if the changes hold forth any promise of better days.

The code of the National recovery program undeniably entails sacrifice on the part of employers and employees; it requires faith in its ultimate success, and willingness to work shoulder to shoulder when we have been matched in competition for many years. But its basic principle is sound. Whether we have the resources at this stage in the fight to come through with colors flying is a question which cannot be determined this early in the day. But when a man is drowning, he'll grasp for a straw. Patrick Henry's worn aphorism still holds water. Ten men working together have a better chance of beating the enemy than twenty men working against each other.

From industrial centers have come reports that the code placed in effect several weeks ago, has already shown definite results. More men are employed, more buying power is setting the wheels of business moving, and there has been a complete change in the morale of these communities.

Antioch has no industries. It is among the towns which will be last to feel effects of the business up-trend. It has a small part to play in this recovery act, but if the voice behind the stage fails to speak, many a drama would be a fiasco.

Merchants in this community are to be congratulated on the courage with which they have met this new hazard in the obstacle race. Forty-five certificates of compliance have already been filed with the postoffice. More will undoubtedly be filed as arrangements are made to meet the code requirements.

Particularly to be commended are those merchants who have not only cut their hours and adjusted their salaries, but who have added employees to their force. In a community of this size, a half dozen men put to work will be felt, if ever so slightly, in increased buying power.

But where the danger of the code's failure lies is at the door of the merchant who signs the code, enjoys its benefits and fails to put in practice the principles, for he is not only a handicap to the success of the recovery act, but to his competitors, who have made the necessary adjustments, as well. In those cases where delay to place the code in effect has been the result of a temporary difficulty in placing its principles in operation, this may be overlooked. But where indifference to the purpose of the act have made signing the code a mere matter of placing a signature on the dotted line, the merchant is absolutely violating his promise.

For three years, autumn has held forth promise of an upward climb out of this slough of despondency. And for three years, the winter months have darkened all hope. If this year's up-trend, which is a more mature and healthy indicator than its predecessors, is to continue on to full realization, we'll all have to shove and lift.

GET READY FOR SCHOOL

Approximately 30,000,000 children, ranging from near-graduates to kindergartners, will converge on our streets and highways this September, all approaching scattered throughout the length and breadth of the land; now they are to be mobilized, crossing our city thoroughfares or country lanes in long lines going to school or coming home.

It is the solemn duty of every motorist to see to it that these youngsters have a safe passage. By following a few simple rules, he can help cut down the toll of 3,400 children killed and 152,550 injured in 1932. Every motorist should remember to approach a school zone with care; to slow down at all intersections; to watch his speed on curves in the country; Above all, he should look out for the unexpected. Children who meet after two months' separation, become so absorbed that they forget about the danger of dashing into the roadway, darting from behind parked cars, or trying to retrieve a ball from under the fender of a moving vehicle. The motorist must do their thinking for them.

The reduction in motor accidents to children of school age in the United States, is the brightest picture in the safety movement, but there still remains much to be done to further reduce the number of tragedies—90 per cent of which are avoidable. Educators, school authorities and teachers constantly emphasize the dangers of modern traffic conditions, to the improvement is the motorist. He should drive at all times as he would if his child were out in that crowd ahead.

"He careth for you"

IT IS related of "Christian," in "The Pilgrim's Progress," that he began his journey to the Celestial City bearing on his back a great burden, but that it rolled away from him when he had gone far enough to behold the saving love of Christ. As we journey through this earthly experience, it seems sometimes as if we, too, were weighted with a heavy burden which we feel it is our duty to carry, although it greatly impedes our progress. What a relief it would be to get rid of this incubus, to learn that we may pursue our way unencumbered, and find all our needs abundantly supplied so long as we do not wander from the right path!

"Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and he shall sustain thee," said the Psalmist. Many instances of this sustaining love, experienced in ancient times, are recorded in the Bible, and many more might be recorded in our own day; for those who obey the Scriptural command, "Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, . . . casting all your care upon him; for he careth for you," are learning that God does care for His creation.

Christian Science is teaching many a one to undo the heavy burdens of care and anxiety by gaining a clear understanding of what God really is. On page 465 of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," Mary Baker Eddy writes, "God is incorporeal, divine, supreme, infinite Mind, Spirit, Soul, Principle, Life, Truth, Love." As we become conscious of the all-embracing, all-sustaining divine Mind, which is always present everywhere, the nature of which is wholly loving, just, and true, we lose the fear of being crushed by oncoming evils. So we become braver, for on every side we see evidences of the presence of good. Perhaps we had long ago been taught that God is Love, and now we can prove it. Even human parents would not willingly burden their children. Can the human be more loving than the divine? Can the source of all real love, than his Maker. Cast your burden, all your care, upon Him, divine Love, "for he careth for you."

What is our special burden? Is it one of anxiety for our business, fear for its future and for that of our staff, our employees? Let us cast all our care upon divine Mind, for divine Intelligence supplies us from day to day with the justice, honesty, resourcefulness, wisdom, courage, and opportunity which we need. Truth corrects our mistakes, encourages our efforts for reform, and supports us, for He ever sustains all His children. Are we carrying a load of loneliness? Even if we are in a solitary place, divine Love is there to make of that truth which the physical senses cannot perceive, to enrich our thoughts and lift it above self, so that we can emerge from our present condition with open arms and giving hands, happier and more useful than we have ever been.

Is poverty trying to crush out our freedom and our joy? Are we looking to material sources for supply? If so, we are finding but little. Let us look up, seek first the kingdom of heaven, and we shall find it, because it is just at hand. Then we shall find also enough of whatever is required to supply our daily need. But if our hands are holding on to burdens, how can blessings be grasped? We cannot grasp the blessing without dropping the burden. Which shall it be? Just love, the joy, the peace which God is holding out to all, and our outstretched hands will let go their load. Let us keep reaching out for blessing, and we shall not be tempted to drop it again the burden we have dropped.

Are we weighted down by weariness, sickness, or pain? "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden," says the healing Christ, "and I will give you rest. . . . For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light." Nor time, nor place, nor creed, nor race, is any barrier to the ever-present Christ. Let us accept the truth and strength which we inherit as children of God, and face each day with confidence, "for he careth for you."

We need not let grief rob us of the smiles which we owe to our fellow men. God gives joy instead of mourning. He teaches us that Love alone is Life, the ever-present Life of all because "he careth for you," and for were allowed to carry no burden upon the Sabbath day. Let us resolve to keep every day holy, and to carry only what comes to us from the hand of divine Love. Then we shall be free from the false sense of self, and burdens of our neighbors, helping them to cast all their care on divine Love, gently reminding them that "he careth for you."—The Christian Science Monitor.

A SOLUTION?

Is the National Recovery Act code a complete solution to the business depression? Perhaps not, but it offers hope of partial solution if it wins wholehearted support, national industrial leaders agree. A year ago or two years ago, when we were already in the midst of this period which has surpassed all others for trade apathy, this drastic measure would have won "boos" from all but the radicals. But we're a nation which is tired of waiting for the world to right itself.

The philosophy that things will come out all right of themselves, was given a trial in 1930, '31 and '32. We have lost faith in this Pollyanna idea. We want action if it means our own action, and we're willing to allow our established modes of thinking to undergo great changes, if the changes hold forth any promise of better days.

The code of the National recovery program undeniably entails sacrifice on the part of employers and employees; it requires faith in its ultimate success, and willingness to work shoulder to shoulder when we have been matched in competition for many years. But its basic principle is sound. Whether we have the resources at this stage in the fight to come through with colors flying is a question which cannot be determined this early in the day. But when a man is drowning, he'll grasp for a straw. Patrick Henry's worn aphorism still holds water. Ten men working together have a better chance of beating the enemy than twenty men working against each other.

From industrial centers have come reports that the code placed in effect several weeks ago, has already shown definite results. More men are employed, more buying power is setting the wheels of business moving, and there has been a complete change in the morale of these communities.

Antioch has no industries. It is among the towns which will be last to feel effects of the business up-trend. It has a small part to play in this recovery act, but if the voice behind the stage fails to speak, many a drama would be a fiasco.

Merchants in this community are to be congratulated on the courage with which they have met this new hazard in the obstacle race. Forty-five certificates of compliance have already been filed with the postoffice. More will undoubtedly be filed as arrangements are made to meet the code requirements.

Particularly to be commended are those merchants who have not only cut their hours and adjusted their salaries, but who have added employees to their force. In a community of this size, a half dozen men put to work will be felt, if ever so slightly, in increased buying power.

But where the danger of the code's failure lies is at the door of the merchant who signs the code, enjoys its benefits and fails to put in practice the principles, recovery act, but to his competitors, who have made the necessary adjustments, as well. In those cases where delay to place the code in effect has been the result of a temporary difficulty in placing its principles in operation, this may be overlooked. But where indifference to the purpose of the act have made signing the code a mere matter of placing a signature on the dotted line, the merchant is absolutely violating his promise.

For three years, autumn has held forth promise of an upward climb out of this slough of despondency. And for three years, the winter months have darkened all hope. If this year's up-trend, which is a more mature and healthy indicator than its predecessors, is to continue on to full realization, we'll all have to shove and lift.

GET READY FOR SCHOOL

Approximately 30,000,000 children, ranging from near-graduates to kindergartners, will converge on our streets and highways this September, all approaching central points. Through the summer they have been scattered throughout the length and breadth of the land; now they are to be mobilized, crossing our city thoroughfares or country lanes in long lines going to school or coming home.

It is the solemn duty of every motorist to see to it that these youngsters have a safe passage. By following a few simple rules, he can help cut down the toll of 3,400 children killed and 152,550 injured in 1932. Every motorist should remember to approach a school zone with care; to slow down at all intersections; to watch his speed on curves in the country. Above all, he should look out for the unexpected. Children who meet after two months' separation, become so absorbed that they forget about the danger of dashing into the roadway, darting from behind parked cars, or trying to retrieve a ball from under the fender of a moving vehicle. The motorist must do their thinking for them.

The reduction in motor accidents to children of school age in the United States, is the brightest picture in the safety movement, but there still remains much to be done to further reduce the number of tragedies—90 per cent of which are avoidable. Educators, school authorities and teachers constantly emphasize the dangers of modern traffic conditions, to the children. The one person able to bring about great improvement is the motorist. He should drive at all times as he would if his child were out in that crowd ahead.

"He careth for you"

IT IS related of "Christian," in "The Pilgrim's Progress," that he began his journey to the Celestial City bearing on his back a great burden, but that it rolled away from him when he had gone far enough to behold the saving love of Christ. As we journey through this earthly experience, it seems sometimes as if we, too, were weighed with a heavy burden which we feel it is our duty to carry, although it greatly impedes our progress. What a relief it would be to get rid of this incubus, to learn that we may pursue our way unencumbered and find all our needs abundantly supplied so long as we do not wander from the right path!

"Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and he shall sustain thee," said the Psalmist. Many instances of this sustaining love, experienced in ancient times, are recorded in the Bible, and many more might be recorded in our own day; for those who obey the Scriptural command, "Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, casting all your care upon him; for he careth for you," are learning that God does care for His creation.

Christian Science is teaching many a one to undo the heavy burdens of care and anxiety by gaining a clear understanding of what God really is. On page 465 of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" Mary Baker Eddy writes, "God is incorporeal, divine, supreme, infinite Mind, Spirit, Soul, Principle, Life, Truth, Love." As we become conscious of the all-embracing, all-sustaining divine Mind, which is always present everywhere, the nature of which is wholly loving, just, and true, we lose the fear of being crushed by oncoming evils. So we become braver, for on every side we see evidences of the presence of good. Perhaps we had long ago been taught that God is Love, and now we can prove it. Even human parents would not willingly burden their children. Can the human mind be more loving than the divine? Love? Man cannot be more just, more loving, than his Maker. Cast your burden, all your care, upon Him, divine Love, "for he careth for you."

What is our special burden? Is it one of anxiety for our business, fear for its future and for that of our staff, our employees? Let us cast all our care upon divine Mind, for divine intelligence supplies us from day to day with the justice, honesty, resourcefulness, wisdom, courage, and opportunity which we need. Truth corrects our mistakes, encourages our efforts for reform, and supports us, for He ever sustains all His children.

Are we carrying a load of loneliness? Even if we are in a solitary place, divine Love is there to make the solitude glad with the revealing of that truth which the physical senses cannot perceive, to enrich our thought and lift it above self, so that we can emerge from our present condition with open arms and giving hands, happier and more useful than we have ever been.

Is poverty trying to crush out our freedom and our joy? Are we looking for material sources for supply? If so, we are finding but little. Let us look up, seek first the kingdom of God, and we shall find it, because also enough of whatever is required to supply our daily need. But if both hands are holding on to burdens, how can the blessing be grasped? We cannot grasp the blessing without dropping the burden. Which shall it be? Just love, the joy, the peace which God is holding out to all, and our stretched hands will let go their load. Let us keep reaching out for blessings, and we shall not be tempted to pick up again the burden we have dropped.

Are we weighted down by weariness, sickness, or pain? "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden," says the healing Christ, "and I will give you rest. . . . For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light." Nor time, nor pain, nor creed, nor race, is any barrier to the ever-present Christ. Let us accept the health and strength which we inherit as children of God, and face each day with confidence, "for he careth for you."

We need not let grief rob us of the smiles which we owe to our fellow men. God gives joy instead of mourning. He teaches us that Love alone is Life, the ever-present Life of all because "he careth for you," and for we were allowed to carry no burden upon the Sabbath day. Let us resolve to keep every day holy, and to carry only what comes to us from the hand of divine Love. Then we shall be free from the false sense of self, and so be better able to undo the heavy burdens of our neighbors, helping them to cast all their care on the love of God, gently reminding them that "he careth for you."—The Christian Science Monitor.

"Man" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, September 3.

The Golden Text was, "He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" (Micah 6:8).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Know ye that the Lord he is God: it is he that hath made us, and not we ourselves; we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture. Enter into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise: be thankful unto him, and bless his name" (Psalms 100:3, 4).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Man, made in His likeness, possesses and reflects God's dominion over all the earth" (p. 518).

Library Will Add Gertrude Stein and Four Junior Books; 3 Others Received

Titles of the five new books which will arrive at the Antioch Public Library are announced in a bulletin received this week by Miss Mary Stanley, librarian. Three books which replace books which were not considered satisfactory by the board, have been received recently, Miss Stanley states.

"The Autobiography of Toklas," by Gertrude Stein, which has won wide attention among critics and readers because of the prominence of the author and the unusual style in which she writes, is the September adult selection of the Literary Guild, according to the bulletin. Miss Stein, who for years has had a great influence on the writing of Ernest Hemingway and other young writers, according to her own explanation, wrote her autobiography for everyone. Her style is startling in its simplicity.

"Johnny Round the World" by Andre and William La Varre is the book for primary children which will be received in September. This book contains photographs of boys and girls in every part of the world.

A collection of Russian Folklore, as told by a Russian peasant nurse, is contained in "Tales of A Russian Grandmother," by Frances Carpenter, written for children of intermediate age.

The girls' book this month is written by Lurline Bowles, a student of Indian Folklore, "The Big Canoe," and is about the Indians of south Alaska and British Columbia. A story of a young army flyer during the first year of his service in action, "Rhodes of the 94th," by Frederic

N. Litten, is the boys' book. "Success," by Leon Feuchtwanger and "American Omnibus," with an introduction written by Carl Van Doren, are two of the substitute books received recently. A third is "A Buried Treasure," by Elizabeth Madox Roberts.

To prove that every home can afford to heat with gas... we will install it at our expense and remove it at our expense, if you don't like it.

THIS back-breaking toil is only part of the job of tending fires! There's those extra cold days when she toils up and down the basement stairs. Nursing the fire. Worrying that it might go out. Trying vainly to keep even heat. Cleaning, endlessly cleaning dusty grime and soot from walls, curtains, furniture. And you do your part, too. You shovel coal. Dry out ashes. Split kindling. End this old-fashioned heating method by installing gas heat in your home at once.

Get the pleasure of living in modern times with the invisible servant, gas heat, to take care of all your furnace troubles.

Every home can afford it

All homes—even the most modest, can now have clean, automatic gas heat. Rates are less than the old (those of 1930-31). You're always getting gas heat. Now you can have it. We have a plan for you to try it in your own home without making an investment of one cent in equipment. We're sure you'll want it forever when you know from experience its reasonable cost—its great advantages. Just tell us that you want to try gas heat. We will install the equipment in your furnace or boiler and pay every cent of the cost. During the nine heating months of the first year you pay $3.00 a month rental for the equipment in the average home. This charge will be included with your monthly gas bill. You pay nothing during the first year you decide that you don't want gas heat you order it out. And out it comes. We replace your former equipment in the same or better condition than we found it. If you decide you want to keep gas heat, the rental you paid applies on the purchase price of the equipment. No other fuel makes you such an offer. Take advantage of it at once.

Now in effect
NEW LOW COST
for Heating Homes with GAS

YOU INVEST NOTHING!

Without ONE CENT of investment by you, we install the most modern burner in your furnace or boiler. If you are satisfied, it stays. If not—and you are the sole judge—out it comes and your former heating system is re-installed—AT OUR EXPENSE. No other fuel for home-heating dares make such an offer.

It's the Background of the Food Served Which Will Give Nourishment of Artistry

Glassware, China, Bright Colors Lend Table Distinction

"It's not the dish, but what's in it," is the average man's opinion regarding table wear, and yet that same average man will be immeasurably awayed, subconsciously, by the artistry with which a table is set. Exquisite glassware and attractive china may both lack vitamin content, but they supply the eye with satisfying nourishment.

Throwing away the old dishes and stocking up on new would appeal to many a housewife who has washed the same dishes until she would be willing to eat on tin plates for a change, but it must be admitted that those who can afford to give their tables a new dress, usually lack an opportunity to live of the old.

Putting a new festivity in table setting by giving a background for a pot roast which will persuade the family that they are being served with a rare delicacy, need not be an expensive process. Glassware, table linen, odd dishes, or perhaps a new breakfast set of dishes—any one of these will add the brightness or contrast or daintiness which your table with its present service may lack.

Glassware
And the woman who invades the realms of table accoutrements, will find a gay adventure awaits her. Glassware alone, breathtaking these days in its daring designs and colors, will give a table chic and appeal. To start with tumblers, there are squat tumblers which have the general outline of a Chinese idol, and there are tall willow shapes, goblets, pillenars, and the plain glass of nondescript, height, width and outline. There are bright colors, ranging from a glowing ruby, which will brighten up the rainy day, to rich amber, opaque blue, cool green, and even amethyst. One of these colors may bring out some hidden beauty in your dining room and china which will thrice repay you for their purchase price. Gay glasses which are polka dotted, striped, checked and lined in eccentric plaids are an always cheerful note on the lunch table and for the in-between-meal table. All plaid or polka dot design may help the small child to cultivate a taste for milk.

Glassware may be the brightening note in more than tumblers. Vegetable dishes of bright glass may give your table new decorative value and glass dishes may be used for the salads, and of course for jams and pickles. A glass set will make Sunday night supper, or Sunday breakfast and other informal meals events of real interest.

Milk White Ware
The milk white glassware which has seen such a return recently will do much for the table which has little that is attractive about it. A white server, perhaps in the three tiered type, with relish dishes in the milk white, and a touch of green color in the glassware or the china-ware, will create a distinctive table.

Silver serving dishes combined with white china and blue glassware, will combine to make a table elegant as well as attractive. But elegance is no more distinctive than the informal artistry of a table on which a checked tablecloth has been used for a background. Maple and birch wood dishes are a novelty which are offered for setting a daintily informal and distinctive table. However, these dishes are impractical for daily use and therefore will be judged an extravagance by many women. Serving spoons and forks in wood and aluminum combine well with these dishes. For the budget which allows such luxuries, these dishes will give distinction to any buffet supper.

Remembering that the colors and fashions of dishes should harmonize and fit in with the room in which they will be used will aid in making wise selections. A green table scheme will not be lovely in a blue dining room, no matter how lovely the articles which make up that scheme. An exception is the careful selection of blues and greens which will combine without a jarring note. Likewise, a checked red table cloth will not look "at home" in a Louis XIV dining room. Keep an eye on your table's attractiveness as well as to the cooking, and you'll supply vitamins and beauty in a satisfying combination.

Bowl of Fruit Will Make Charming Center

A bowl of mixed fruit is a treat for Sunday breakfast which offers its best possibilities at this time of the year. A large glass or pewter or earthenware bowl with pears and grapes and peaches and all the fruits which will tempt your family. The bowl will make a charming centerpiece as well as an appetizing dish.

Courtesy Backed by Reasons Proves Worth Cultivating

Most of us find statements declaring etiquette not half so important as the courtesy of a kindly and considerate heart, a satisfactory philosophy, but few of us are willing to ignore the small niceties of life despite our confidence in that philosophy.

The woman who will worry over whether she may eat the lettuce of her salad, or whether to cut it with her knife, is an exaggerated type, but many of us to a less degree have her regard for trivial opinion.

Swave manners are not a necessity of fine character nor is lack of them necessarily indicative of stupidity, but they are the stamp which denotes breeding and background, and few of us are oblivious to the attraction and advantage of these qualities.

Changes
Etiquette is something which changes with time and the locality. Customs which are sanctioned today by the most rigid preservers of the code of manners, would have been considered outrageous and even immoral in the period of five decades ago. Customs which are today considered barbaric in New York, have the perfect sanction of Chicago. Etiquette differs also with the mode of living. The young business girl's code of manners will differ from the debutante's and the young matron with a family for which she does the work will not follow the same rules for entertaining as the society dowager who has a corps of servants.

Observations of the small courtesies recognized as "essentials" by the dictators of etiquette, become good habits in the man if they are taught to him during his childhood. The small boy who helps mother off with her coat and relinquishes his chair to his father without being told is learning more than a trivial mannerism. He is acquiring an attitude of consideration for others which will color his whole life, and this attitude will give his acts of courtesy a grace which cannot be acquired later in life.

Formalities
The formality of writing bread-and-butter letters, of writing thank-you's for gifts, of writing letters of condolence, when analyzed readily reveal that they are not mere formalities, for they represent what should be genuine appreciation or sympathy. None of us extend hospitality or give for the sake of being thanked; our reason, ostensibly, is to give happiness, although occasionally it is to win favor for ourselves. With no expression of thanks, the giver has no way of knowing that he has given pleasure, and quite frequently, the omission rankles.

Courtesy with a reason is most genuine. Cultivation of this type of good manners will make your contacts with your fellowmen more pleasant.

Cottons Simplify Problem of Selecting Wardrobe; Child Should Have Comfort

Juvenile fashions, with the opening of school, occupy a position in the limelight. The popularity of cottons, even in dark colors, has considerably simplified this year's problem of the school wardrobe.

Skirts and blouses also simplify this matter, and will be worn this fall by all ages. An attractive outfit to the grade school girl is a combination of a cotton plaid pleated skirt with a broadcloth white blouse.

School clothes should be plain, easily laundered, or cleaned, loose but not ill fitting, and comfortable. The child who has sleeve details which bother her in writing, or pleats which require care to keep them pleated, won't be comfortable in her school clothes.

SEED LAWNS NOW

Fall seeding of lawns is nature's way and has not been improved on. The seed should be put in the ground before the fall rains come. Only good, clean seed should be used. A mixture of two parts Kentucky bluegrass and one part Redtop seed will make a good lawn if the seed is put in a good seedbed. A small amount of white clover can be added to the mixture if desired. On new lawns one-half ounce of seed should be used for each square yard of lawn. The seed should be covered with a light raking. Complete fertilizer applied as a top dressing will encourage growth. It is important that an ample supply of organic material be worked into the soil before seeding. This will help hold moisture. On old lawns one-quarter pound of seed per square yard will be enough.

Time Now To Get Bulbs in Soil for 1934 "Tulip Time"

This isn't tulip time, but it is time to get ready for tulips, according to S. W. Hall, of the division of floriculture, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois. "While tulip bulbs may be planted anytime from the middle of September until the ground freezes, early October is the ideal time for planting, as this allows the bulbs to become thoroughly established and to make a vigorous root-growth before the ground freezes," he said.

"Numerous types of tulips are on the market, but at the present time Early Flowering, Darwin, Breeder, and Cottage types are the most popular. The ideal way to select varieties is to visit a large planting in the spring when the tulips are in bloom."

"Tulips thrive best in a rich soil that is light in texture and well drained. The soil where the bulbs are to be set should be pulverized deeply and thoroughly. One should not work the soil while it is wet, and the use of fresh or decaying manure should be avoided. Eight ounces of bonemeal to a square yard of soil and a layer of well rotted stable manure one inch deep will supply the necessary fertility."

"It is a mistake to plant tulips singly, dotting them one by one here and there. When they are not planted in beds for mass effect, they are probably seen at their best when used six or more bulbs in a group. A sunny position should always be selected for them. They will not make their best growth if they are planted close to mature trees or shrubs."

"The bulbs should be spaced six or seven inches apart each way if used in a bed or eight to nine inches apart in a border. As for depth of planting, four inches from the top of the bulb to the surface of the soil is satisfactory."

"It is not necessary to buy large quantities of bulbs. If properly cared for, tulips will increase rapidly and on the average will at least triple in numbers every two years. After planting, the bulbs may remain in one location for three successive years."

IMPRISON the glorious color and fragrance of autumn's own fruit—grapes—in glasses of tender, sparkling jelly. But make it the safe, sure, modern short-bolt way with bottled pectin. You get more glasses of jelly and a better flavor by the short-bolt method, because neither the fruit juice nor the flavor are boiled away by long cooking.

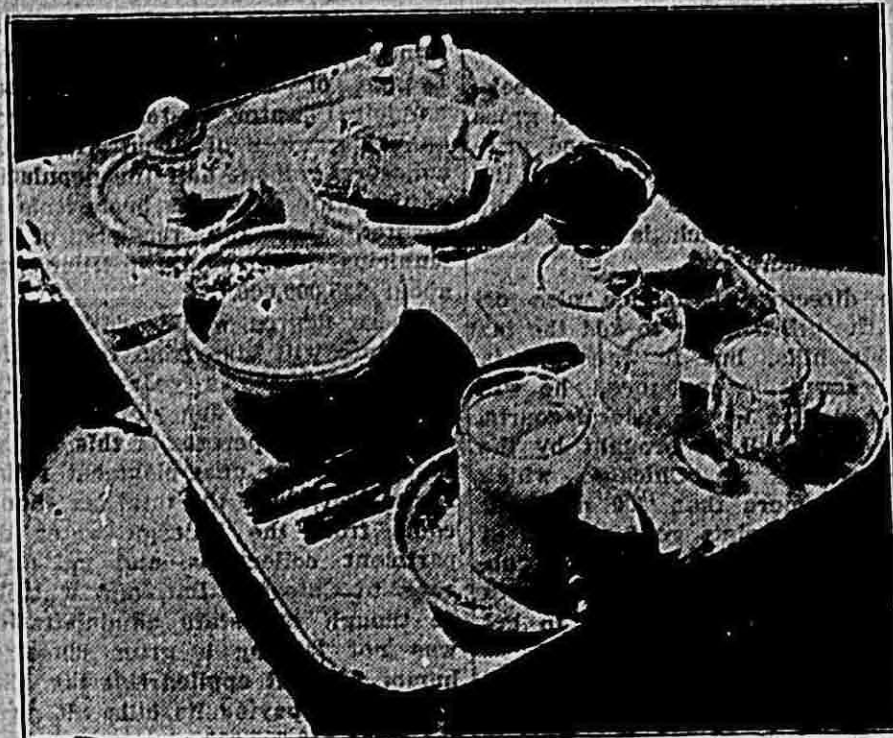

Ripe Grape Jelly

4 cups (1 1/2 lbs.) juice, 7 1/2 cups (3 1/2 lbs.) sugar, 1/2 bottle fruit pectin.
To prepare juice, stem about 8 pounds fully ripe grapes and crush thoroughly. Add 1 cup water and squeeze out juice. Add 1/2 cup lemon juice and 1/2 cup lemon rind. Boil for 10 minutes. Strain through a fine cloth. Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add bottled fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 5 minutes. Remove from fire, stir quickly. Pour into jars. Seal at once. Makes about 12 glasses (8 fluid ounces each).

Grape and Elderberry Jelly
3 cups (1 lb.) elderberry juice, 3 cups (1 lb.) bottled grape juice, 7 1/2 cups (3 1/2 lbs.) sugar, 1/2 bottle fruit pectin.
To prepare juice, remove large stems from about 3 pounds fully ripe elderberries. Place in kettle and crush. Heat gently until juice starts to flow and then strain. Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add bottled fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 5 minutes. Remove from fire, stir quickly. Pour into jars. Seal at once. Makes about 12 glasses (8 fluid ounces each).

Ripe Grape Jam
4 1/2 cups (1 1/2 lbs.) prepared fruit, 7 cups (3 1/2 lbs.) sugar, 1/2 bottle fruit pectin.
To prepare fruit, slip skins from about 3 pounds fully ripe grapes. Remove pulp, seeds and stems. Chop or grind skins and add 1/2 cup water. Boil for 10 minutes. Strain through a fine cloth. Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add bottled fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 5 minutes. Remove from fire, stir quickly. Pour into jars. Seal at once. Makes about 12 glasses (8 fluid ounces each).

"Vitamins and Minerals Required for Tots," Says Diet Expert

A Substantial Breakfast Is Essential to the Boy or Girl of School Age.

By FRANCES BERKELEY FLOORE
Director of Dietetics, St. Luke's Hospital

MOST parents watch their children carefully for signs of poor physical development or a listless mental attitude, and it is true that such outward appearances do show to some extent, whether the child is thoroughly healthy; whether he is getting the proper food, rest and exercise. However, nutritional scientists and child specialists state that this is not an infallible indication that all is well. There may be as well a "hidden hunger"—a nutritional deficiency that will not evidence itself immediately but will endanger the child's future health.

This lack is most apt to be in the vitamins and the mineral, calcium. That is why scientists recommend that the foods rich in these qualities be included in each day's diet, or, in other words, that is why they say the child's daily menu should include one quart of milk, two servings of vegetables, one of the green leafy type; and two servings of fruits, one of the citrus variety, supplemented by eggs taken several times a week.

If the diet is greatly deficient in these food elements, definite physical ills such as rickets, eye trouble, nervous diseases, dental ills or scurvy may occur, and if the diet has only "just enough" of these minerals and vitamins, the child cannot attain the best health.

Each of these protective foods is indispensable—that is, extra quantities of one that the child happens to like particularly well cannot be substituted for any one of the others and insure that the child will be adequately nourished.

For instance, the calcium which is one of the minerals most apt to be lacking in the American diet (both of adults and children) cannot be secured in satisfactory amounts in any other food except milk. About ten servings daily of vegetables and ten servings of fruits would have to be taken to get the amount of calcium equal to that in slightly more than one pint of milk or the adult's calcium need. Children require about twice this much, so it is obvious that it would be impractical to attempt to supply this particular element in any other food, especially since the quality of the calcium in other foods is not as desirable as that in milk.

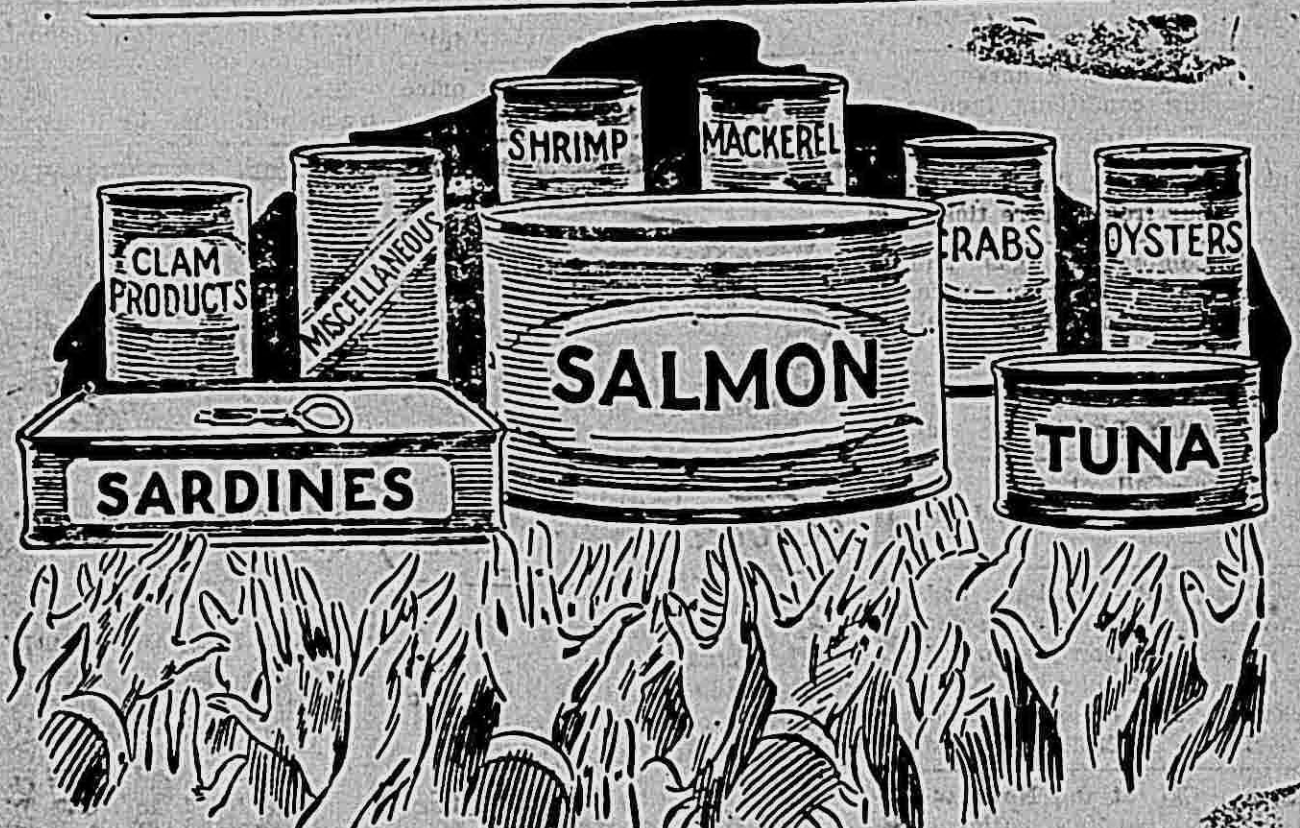

This single quart of milk will also provide practically all of the individual's phosphorus requirement, a liberal amount of the Vitamins A and C, one-third or more of the protein, 1/4 or more of the iron, at least 1/2 of the energy and some of the Vitamins B, C and D. In the winter time the child's diet should usually be supplemented by either cod liver oil or irradiated ergosterol.

Thus it is obvious that milk, as our most complete food, is not only necessary for adequate nutrition, but also for the truest economy.

Americans Eat Canned Fish

THAT the citizens of this country have a gargantuan appetite for canned fish is proved by the fact that in the five year period from 1923 to 1932, inclusive, they consumed more than two and a half billion pounds of it—2,634,849,379 pounds, to be exact, according to the United States Department of Commerce.

The canned fish included in this calculation were, first of all, salmon of which 1,845,860,755 pounds were consumed during this period, next sardines, 553,210,404 pounds, then tuna, 177,260,594 pounds, shrimp, 68,776,328 pounds, clam products, 63,161,582 pounds, miscellaneous, 50,648,960 pounds, mackerel, 57,210,730 pounds, crab, 54,834,674 pounds, oysters, 33,333,220 pounds, and alewives and alewife roe, 21,052,128 pounds.

You can add these figures up for yourself, if you like, but you'll find it a lot more fun to try some of the following recipes for the cooking of these canned fish which are consumed in such gigantic quantities by your fellow citizens.

Salmon and Sardines

Salmon and Tomato Sauce: Turn the salmon from a one-pound can with the liquor into a stewpan and add the contents of a 15-ounce can of tomatoes, one bay leaf, one sliced onion, one-fourth teaspoon peppercorns and one cup water. Flow gently for about fifteen minutes. Press through a coarse sieve. Reheat and add a pinch of soda, and pour slowly into a white sauce made of four tablespoons butter, four tablespoons flour and two and one-half cups milk. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Serves six.

Sardine and Asparagus Canapés: Cream two tablespoons butter. Mash the contents of a four-ounce can of boneless and skinless sardines. Mix together to a smooth paste, and add lemon juice, paprika and Worcestershire sauce to taste. Spread on long, narrow toast fingers. Drain a can of asparagus tips, dip each in mayonnaise until completely covered, and lay one tip lengthwise on each canapé. Cross with pimiento strips, if desired. This will make from twelve to sixteen canapés.

Tuna and Shrimp

Tuna Fish Mornay: Arrange the contents of two 7-ounce cans of tuna fish in six individual greased earthenware baking dishes. Make a cream sauce of two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, one tablespoon chopped onion, three-fourths cup white stock (or one chicken bouillon cube) and three-fourths cup cream (or evaporated milk). Add four tablespoons Parmesan cheese, and season to taste with salt and pepper. Pour over the fish, sprinkle with more cheese, dot with butter and brown in a hot oven, or under broiler. Serves six.

Shrimp in "Picapic": Soften one tablespoon gelatin in four tablespoons cold water. Drain an 8-ounce can of Hawaiian pineapple tidbits, add four tablespoons lemon juice to the syrup, and then enough water to make two cups liquid. Bring to a boil, pour over gelatin, and add four tablespoons sugar, and stir until dissolved. Cool. Put a shrimp from a 5 1/2-ounce can and several tidbits into each of eight individual molds, and add a couple of spoonfuls of gelatin. Let harden in ice box. Add another layer of shrimps, tidbits and gelatin, and harden. Do this until molds are full. Chill. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise garnish. Serves eight.

Mackerel and Crab

Mackerel with Creole Sauce: Immerse one 1-pound can fresh mackerel in water and boil for fifteen minutes. Open and remove mackerel to a hot platter. Meanwhile sauté one-half cup thinly sliced onions and one-fourth cup shredded green pepper in three tablespoons butter until tender. Add two tablespoons flour and stir smooth. Then add two cups canned tomatoes (unstrained) slowly and stir constantly; till thick and creamy. Season to taste with salt, pepper and one teaspoon sugar and pour over the hot mackerel. Serves six.

Jellied Crab Ring: Simmer together for five minutes the contents of a No. 2 can of tomatoes, one teaspoon salt, one slice onion and four cloves, and press through a sieve. Dissolve in it four teaspoon gelatin which has been softened in two tablespoons cold water. When it starts to stiffen add the shredded crabmeat from a 6 1/2-ounce can, one cup diced cucumber, one cup sliced celery and two tablespoons chopped green pepper, and pour into a ring mold. Chill, turn out and all the ring with mayonnaise. Serves six.

UTILITIES REFUSE TO "ABSORB" TAX; SEE COURT TEST

Department of Finance Exceeds Authority, Is Claim

Springfield, Sept. 7.—The State of Illinois, for the first time in its history has put a direct annual tax of about $550,000 on its municipalities, largely for the benefit of one of them—Chicago.

The levy was not made directly by the legislature, which is supposed to be vested with such powers, but by the State Department of Finance, under the provision of the sales tax.

The director of finance, Gov. Horner appointee, claiming the right under the law to define "tangible property," included water, gas, electricity and heat, and levied the two per cent tax against all utilities, municipal as well as those privately owned.

This followed by only a few weeks the action of three per cent on gross receipts. The privately owned utilities now must pay 5 percent—3 to the government and 2 to the state—on gross receipts, which is more than the stockholders get.

The director of finance also ordered the utilities not to add the tax to their bills, but to "absorb" it. This order, it is announced, he will have to defend in the federal courts. A test case will be brought by the large utilities in Chicago, which claim that more than 200 per cent of all their receipts go for taxes in various forms. The order to "absorb" the state tax is in keeping with Gov. Horner's efforts to try to get the money without letting the people know they are paying.

There are 57 municipal electric light and power plants in Illinois with estimated annual gross receipts of about $2,744,900, based on figures obtained from the Public Ownership League of America. The Chicago municipal water system has gross annual receipts of about $12,000,000 and serves about half the population of the state. On this basis it is estimated that the receipts of all municipal water plants in Illinois are about $25,000,000.

These figures would indicate that the state will take from the municipalities $554,898 a year under the sales tax. Until Jan. 1, and maybe afterwards, 90 percent of this will go to Chicago for unemployment relief. About $240,000 of the total tax should come from the Chicago water department collections—and go right back to Chicago. But, and it looks as though the state administration was not lacking a grim sense of humor when it applied this tax, Chicago is not paying its bills. It owes the state $40,000,000 now.

Inquiry at the Chicago City Hall last week elicited the information that the city had not paid the tax on the July water collections and that "because of the city's financial condition it might be two years before the city could pay." The sales tax law expires in less than two years.

The tax is also assessed against privately owned utilities, with annual gross receipts of $232,845,129, to bring in $4,658,902 for the state administration to spend. But these companies will fight.

Reports Received on Property Loss In Florida Storm

Property owned by Antioch and former Antioch residents suffered damage in the hurricane which lashed Florida last Monday night from West Palm Beach in Melbourne and covering the surrounding area, according to incomplete reports received this week.

A wife received the following day from the William Hillebrands, former residents, who are located at Eau Gallie, stated that buildings on their property had suffered no damage, but the yard was badly torn up. Dr. E. C. Daniels of Waukegan, who has property at Melbourne, was wired that the trees had been torn up in his yard.

The south side of the roof on a building at Melbourne owned by W. R. Williams, was torn off, he learned Tuesday. Complete information as to the damage which has been done to Mr. Williams' property at Melbourne and Roseland had not been received by him this morning.

Antioch residents who annually visit Florida have, in most cases, written friends for information, but were still waiting for letters today.

THIS TIME make sure of SATISFACTION

ALMOST any suit will "fit." Only a tailor-made suit gives you the super-fit that seems to add height if you're short, breadth if you're thin, slimmness if you're stout. Only a BORN tailored suit gives you fabrics that can't be seen in a ready-made suit.
